ACT FOUR

FADE IN:

INT. FBI / INTERROGATION ROOM - DAY (D/3 CONT'D)

22

Dr. Toni, faces Booth; she doesn't look quite as smooth as she did before.

*

BOOTH

You lied to me.

*

DR. TONI

Yes. I wrote Cal a prescription for pain-killers. I shouldn't have.

*

*

*

*

(off his look)

*

That's the truth.

*

BOOTH

Yeah, not this time, Doc. Now that I know you're a world-class liar, I'm a little more prepared.

*

*

*

*

He pushes some print outs toward Dr. Toni -

*

DR. TONI

My flight logs for the last year.

*

*

BOOTH

Yup. Lookie there...

*

*

DR. TONI

Yes. I took Cal flying a few times.

*

*

*

BOOTH

Without the kids.

*

*

Booth slides a piece of paper toward her -

*

BOOTH (CONT'D)

This particular flight, to New York, you were gone for the whole weekend.

*

*

*

*

DR. TONI

All right, all right, yes. I'll tell you what you want to know. No, my husband doesn't know that I had an affair with the King's manny. Would I kill Cal to prevent my husband finding out? No, I would not. Why?

DR. TONI (CONT'D)

Because my husband doesn't give a good God damn whom I boff. Do I know of anyone else who might wish Cal ill? Yes, Richard King.

BOOTH

Keep going. You're doing great.

DR. TONI

Cal told me to sell a stock. He told me he had inside knowledge that this company was in trouble.
I took the tip and made a killing.
That's when I flew him to New York
as a thank you. And he said
"you're welcome" all weekend.

BOOTH

What's that got to do with Richard King?

DR. TONI

It was Richard King's company.

BOOTH

There, see? Doesn't it feel good to tell the truth?

Dr. Toni would love to smack him and Booth loves that.

STOP TO:

23 INT. MEDICO-LEGAL LAB / OOKY ROOM - DAY 23

Brennan enters to find Hodgins, Wendell and Max.

BRENNAN

(to Max)

What are you doing in here?

MAX

It's so exciting being on the right side of the law for a change. I mean maybe it's just the novelty,
but really, Tempe, this stuff's fun.

BRENNAN

Dr. Hodgins, you should know better.

Brennan looks accusingly at Hodgins, who's adjusting the winvelocity on a MAKESHIFT WIND TUNNEL, which consists of a cylindrical duct with a gas powered LEAF BLOWER at one end and a velocity measuring ANEMOMETER at the other.
